INTERIM LEGAL RESOURCING

An alternative solution to your legal recruitment needs

What is interim legal resourcing?

Interim legal resourcing is an alternative solution to talent management. It promises flexible arrangements where legal professionals are engaged to support businesses and legal departments as and when needed.

What are interim legal professionals?

Interim legal professionals are legally qualified individuals with relevant expertise who are contracted out to businesses on an ad-hoc or temporary basis. They may be experienced lawyers who can provide expert advice, or junior lawyers who can provide support with high-volume work. Together, we will explore what is best for you.

Why is interim legal resourcing gaining much popularity?

Interim legal resourcing is becoming a key component of legal service delivery for many corporate legal departments, and has provided the business sector with solutions to adapt to the ever-changing legal market.

Many businesses and corporate legal departments are affected by cost pressures and headcount freezes. They now seek alternative solutions to meet demands in resources. In this fast-paced business climate, they must be able to immediately respond to resource demands. Most interim resources are immediately available thus providing a faster and more streamlined on-boarding process.

How this will help you

Eases your burden of recruiting, interviewing, and hiring employees, and dealing with mundane paperwork and administration that follow

Testimonials

The ILR legal professional has performed well and met our expectations. She has managed major agreements assigned to her, been supportive of all requirements, and adapted to the fast pace of the company.

It was a good arrangement, and we consider it an important service to our organisation. We are happy to continue this collaboration with LAW Partnership to further enhance our legal department's operations.

ILR client

LAW Partnership's ILR service is truly unique – they took the time to understand my career needs as well as the requirements from their client's organisation to ensure compatibility.

ILR is flexible in terms of duration and placement, and the whole process was quicker than conventional recruitment thanks to their efficient coordination.

Jennifer Wah
ILR legal professional

Being part of the ILR team was a rewarding experience. Beyond the many opportunities it offered, the key highlight for me was seeing the legal services industry becoming more fluid to meet client needs.

At LAW Partnership, I saw firsthand how the team was better equipped to deliver interim legal services and foster stronger, more meaningful relationships with clients — beyond typical law firm-client interactions. As a result, everyone involved gained valuable relationships, contacts, and insights into the evolving legal services landscape.
